SURPRISED THEIR FRIENDS

Miss Mary Jessie Brownell Becomes Mrs. Ben Winfree.

WEDDED IN NASHVILLE.

Quiet Trip to Tennessee Yesterday and Married By Dr. Southgate.

Mr. Ben S. Winfree and Miss Mary Jessie Brownell went over to Nashville yesterday morning and soon after their arrival were joined in marriage at the home of Dr. E. L. Southgate, who performed the ceremony.

They had been sweethearts for a long time, in fact, since they were children, but the marriage was entirely unexpected at this time.

They are both in the cast of "Why Smith Left Home," a local show to be given at the Opera House Feb. 15th and were present at a rehearsal the night before until a late hour. Without taking their friends into their confidence, except two of the young ladies, who, strange to say, were able to keep the secret, they quietly laid their plans and left on the 6:15 train yesterday for Nashville. At Guthrie they were joined by Browne Whitlow and in Nashville were met by Mrs. Hardison, Mr. Winfree's sister. They lost but little time in getting the license and having the ceremony over with. They will remain in Nashville until tonight, arriving home in time for another rehearsal.

The bride is one of the "Oumswee Club girls," bright, pretty and an accomplished musician. She is one of the most popular belles of the city; the only child of Mr. F. J. Brownell, president of the Crescent Milling Company. The groom is a son of Judge W. P. Winfree and is a young man of wide popularity and many admirable qualities.

They will board with Mrs. J. H. Ware, on South Virginia street.

The marriage was not an elopement. The young couple only went to Nashville to spring a surprise on their friends.

The Revival.

Rev. Davis is still, apparently, in good physical condition, though he has been holding two or three services a day for nearly five weeks. He said Tuesday night that he had been looking for a place to stop the meetings but hasn't yet found it. So the public may expect the meeting to close any night or continue for another week. There were three conversions Tuesday night, one of them a prominent young business man.

Skating Rink.

Roller skating is again becoming popular in larger cities. The exercise is said to be one of the best forms of physical culture. Mr. Gano Bullard has about completed his arrangements and expects to open up a rink here in a few days.

Mesdames John Young and W. D. Ennis left Tuesday for Paducah on a week's visit to Mrs. Dr. Garber.

S. K. COLLEGE TO STAY HERE.

Special Committee Held Highly Important Meeting Last Tuesday Night.

GIFT OF $10,000 MADE.

Work of Rebuilding On Large Scale to Be Commenced Early in Spring.

All probability of the city losing South Kentucky College has been set at naught and everything points to the erection of a much more commodious and modern building than the old one, which was partially burned last fall.

The old debt of the institution, which has hung like an incubus over the officers and friends of the college is to be lifted by a donation from Mr. James T. Rash, of Earlinton, Mr. Rash has given $10,000 for this purpose, on condition that the new building is to bear the name of "M. F. Rash Memorial Hall," in memory of the deceased son of the donor.

Rumor says that it is highly probable that another large donation may soon be made. If it is it will be sufficient to erect a ladies' dormitory sufficient to accommodate all lady boarders who may hereafter come here to attend the college.

The gentlemen composing the special committee to raise funds for rebuilding the college have been tireless in their efforts, though at times clouds of discouragement have hung about them and the way seemed dark. But nothing seems to have deterred them from accomplishing the task laid upon them, and they are now where they see their way out of all difficulties—so encouraged are they that the announcement has gone forth that as soon as favorable weather sets in and plans have been prepared the erection of the building proper will begin.

But this announcement should not prevent any one contemplating aid from promptly replying to the call of the committee. A great deal of money will be needed after the building is completed for furniture and proper equipment. Now that rebuilding is an assured fact, so much more the reason for those who are able to step forward and lend the helping hand.

The special committee have been immeasurably assisted in their work by Rev. J. W. Hardy, the man who was called into service when the first building was destroyed, and whose services were deemed indispensable, when the second misfortune befell the institution. All praise to the whole bunch of them, and may their every anticipation be fully realized. So say the people.

Married at High Noon.

A high noon wedding took place in the office of County Clerk Gabe L. Campbell yesterday. After securing their license, the contracting parties, Mr. Isaac Leslie Boyd and Miss Belvie Walker, called in County Judge James Breathitt, who in a few well chosen words declared them man and wife. The bride and groom came here from Kelly, where they will reside.

Dr. B. F. Cabell, President of Potter College, Bowling Green, will perform the ceremony, and the invocation will be by Dr. Chas. H. Nash.

Mrs. Jas. H. Anderson will play the wedding march.

The young couple will leave the same night on a bridal tour.

MRS ELLIOTT'S DEATH.

Was Confined to Her Bed Only a Week.

Mrs. Effie Walker Elliott, wife of Mr. R. L. Elliott, died at her home on Brown street at an early hour yesterday morning. The immediate cause of her death was the bursting of an abscess on the lungs, though she had been suffering for about a week with something like tuberculosis. She was only confined to her bed one week. Mrs. Elliott was 28 years of age and was a noble christian woman. She united with the First Presbyterian church when quite a young girl and was a woman of strong faith. She is survived by her husband and two brothers, Messrs William and J. T. Walker, of this city.

Funeral services will be held at the family residence this morning at 9:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. E. H. Bull. The remains will be interred by those of her mother, who died last April, in the Grace burying ground, about six miles from town on the Greenville road.

New Knights.

County Clerk Gabe L. Campbell and Mr. M. H. McGrew will be initiated into the order of Knights of Pythias at the meeting of Evergreen lodge to-night.

THE GROUSE'S DRUMMING.

Explanation of Sound to Which Mystery Has Always Attached—Whistle of Woodcock.

Few subjects have been so much discussed by sportsmen and the whistle of the woodcock and the drumming of the grouse. The latter sound and its mystery has always attached, says Ernest Ingersoll, in his book "The Grouse and the Duck." The drumming of the grouse is a sound that has been the subject of much speculation. It is a sound that is heard in the depth of the forest and it is a sound that is heard in the distance. It is a sound that is heard in the distance and it is a sound that is heard in the distance.

Few persons have seen the bird in the act of drumming, and of those few a still smaller number have been trained to observe the ways of nature or to draw conclusions from what they may have seen. Nevertheless many people assume observers and some more on the subject. It has been declared that the grouse drums by beating his wings against the object on which he stands, against his own body, or against each other above the back, but none of these have satisfied all the conditions and all are to be rejected.

In the year 1905, however, Prof. C. F. Hodge, of Clark University, carried on a series of observations on his domesticated ruffed grouse which point to another explanation, and which appear to show that the sound is made by the rapidly repeated blows of the stiff wingquills against the erect and expanded feathers of the side, which thus form a feather cushion.

Prof. Hodge says: "In fact, the sound, so far as quality goes, is best imitated by striking with a finger properly stretched or even a convex fan on an extremely light eiderdown cushion." Prof. Hodge conjectures, too, that the bird while drumming fills the air sacs of the breast and abdomen. "In this way the contour surfaces of the strong wing supports along the sides are made to enclose a large cavity filled with air and this acts like the resonance chamber of a drum, and yields the booming throbb to the air."

Prof. Hodge believes, as has long been agreed, that the drumming of the ruffed grouse is a warning call. The fact that the bird drums in autumn is no valid objection to this conclusion, since many birds produce in autumn sounds which we are accustomed to regard as peculiar to the breeding season, though such sounds are often or usually made by young birds.

CHANCE TO THROW STONES

Real Glass Houses Now Constructed in Des Moines—Idea of Iowa Designer.

That living in glass houses is not an idle dream is shown by Frank E. Perkins, in his article on "Modern American Glass Houses" in the Technical World Magazine. Mr. Perkins describes some recent structures of this character in Des Moines, as follows:

"These buildings were designed by C. E. Eastman, a well-known architect of Des Moines, Ia., whose idea of glass wall construction includes the use of milk-white opalescent iron glass one-quarter inch thick securely fixed in two steel vertical divisions, which are parallel and laced together for the purpose of stiffening. These divisions are supported at the floors by brackets riveted to steel channels of the construction. The wall thus consists of two glazed screens separated by a foot of dead air space, which affords insulation against heat, cold or sound to as great an extent as would a solid brick wall of the same thickness."

"The double vertical divisions are spaced about four feet apart. The two glass screens are translucent to any degree desired, so that in cases where windows are not necessary for viewing the landscape, they may be dispensed with altogether, provided the building was constructed with heat and light in a marble wall with or without windows."

JAPANESE DINNER QUARTY.

Hostess Never Eats Until Desserts Are Brought In—Guests Arranged According to Rank.

In Japan the lady of the house does not appear at the dinner, unless there are ladies among the guests, but she comes in with the tea and sweetmeats which always precede a dinner, as our cook, tails and sherry. She greets the guests when they arrive and responds to the good wishes of the host. The guests are seated about the floor and the guests are arranged according to their rank. Little tables, some six inches high, are placed before each one, and bareheaded waiting maids in graceful and prettily tinted kimonos bring in lacquered trays, with tiny covered bowls. Before leaving the trays on the tables they set them on the floor, and, dropping on their knees, make their best bow, touching their heads to the floor. Chopsticks take the place of knives and forks and are never used twice unless they are laid on the table. Then they are covered with the ivory of the most exquisite workmanship, as are the trays and bowls.

Fortunately for the stranger in that land of queer customs, the host sets the example by removing the covers from the bowls. In each course there are a half dozen dishes and the host tells them what they are. First, sashimi, a lean soup; kuchiuri, chestnuts boiled and crushed into a mush; kamaboko, fish picked fine and rolled into little balls and baked; sashimi, raw fish cut into thin slices and served in ice. This is dipped into rich sauce called soy, and is really very good. Little cups of warm sake, the native brandy made from rice, is served with each course. Napkins and bread are unknown quantities. The second course is of fish boiled whole; unagi, hits of fowl boiled with potatoes or lotus roots; a salad of onions, peas and string beans; with a few leaves of lettuce; sunomono, sea snails served with eggplant mashed, and chaman-mushi, a thick soup made of fish and vegetables, with mushrooms for a relish. The third course is of a curry of rice and pickled vegetables, and for a fourth and final course, you have solo, a sort of blackheart vermicelli served with soy, and a sweet liquid called mirin; shiruko, rice cakes, seaweed and confections of all sorts which are sweet and tasty.

BIG RECORD IN LILY BULBS

Exports of This Article from China Will Break All Standing Marks When Count Is In.

Exports of Easter lilies or narcissus bulbs from China this year will break all records. Fifty tons went out of Amoy in one vessel bound for the United States last week, and the next steamer for the Pacific coast is to take a similar shipment.

The prospects are that there will be at least $35,000 worth of these bulbs shipped to the United States this year, exceeding the ordinary record by perhaps $5,000. The bulbs are raised in the Changchow district, about 30 miles inland from Amoy. The flowers are popular among the Chinese, having more or less of a religious significance, although nothing like the significance commonly believed in the United States.

The extent to which they have come to be sold in the United States can best be realized when the volume of exports from the producing district is realized. In 1902, 1,600,000 bulbs were exported; in 1903, 2,348,000; in 1904, 3,037,116, valued at $35,627. The exports this year will probably reach $43,000.

Character Lives After Death.

The only thing that walks back from the tomb with mourners and refuses to be buried is character. What a man is survives him. It never can be buried. It stays about the home when his footsteps are heard there no more. It lives in the community where he was known.—La Harpe (Kan) Journal.

Kind of Rest He Needed.

Husband—I saw the doctor today. He advised me to take a rest trip.

Wife—Did you show him your tongue?

"No, but I told him about yours."

—Flegende Blaetter.

MRS. TIMMINS' MEDICINE CHEST.

"My dear, said Mrs. Timmins, after a long and gloomy pause, 'my dear, I'm not feeling well to-night, and I think I'll take some of those anti-bilious pills. This idea of yours of having a little medicine chest, with everything handy, is an excellent one, and if you can find those pills, I'll take a dose.'"

"They are just what you need," said Mrs. Timmins, sympathetically; "your system is out of order and your complexion will soon show it."

"I don't remember calling on you for any remarks about my complexion," Mrs. Timmins, and as for my tongue being coated, we will assume that it has also got over its fever, and boots. What I asked for was pills, Mrs. Timmins—pills, not oratory."

Mrs. Timmins hunted to the cupboard, and, after considerable search, found a ribbon box with one end knocked out. In it were half a dozen blue papers that belonged to the bulky portion of a sedentary powder, a dose and a half cough mixture, a paper of salts, an empty amica bottle, two lumps of sugar, four biscuits, half a lemon, a lump of camphor, a mustard leaf, and several pill boxes without covers.

"I don't think these are the pills you want," said Mrs. Timmins, looking at the bottom of the medicine chest. "Do you remember whether they were white, brown or black?"

"I'm not particular about the color," responded Mrs. Timmins, anxiously. "This looks like them," said Mrs. Timmins, squishing one between her thumb and finger, and smelling it cautiously. "Do you remember whether they were sugar-coated?"

"I do not," rejoined Mrs. Timmins. "nor do I remember whether they were stand-up collars or a plug hat, if you think I'm going to sit here like a book on herstory and furnish you with the antecedents of those pills, you've lost sight of our relations, Mrs. Timmins. I want to know whether you can find them or not."

"Is this one of them?" asked Mrs. Timmins, chasing a refractory pellet into a corner and fishing it out with some misgiving. "It looks like it, and I can't think what else it's for. Suppose you take it."

"Does it say so on the cover?" Does the cover say its anti-bilious?"

"I can't find the cover," responded Mrs. Timmins, hesitatingly. "Here's a box, will that do?"

"Oh, certainly, anything'll do for me," said Mrs. Timmins. "All I want is a box and a pill. It doesn't make any difference whether they go together or not. Do you know a pill from a post office? Can you tell the difference between a pill box and a policeman? Do you suppose I'm going to eat one of those things without knowing whether it's a railway ticket or a policeman's? What did you mean by 'em up?' Do you think I'm going to speculate in those pills till one hits my liver? or to take 'em in courses like an Equitable banquet? Have you got to search warrant to find those pills?"

"Suppose you put on this mustard plaster," suggested Mrs. Timmins, holding up a box. "Mustard is the best thing in the world to excite the action of the liver."

"Oh, yes, certainly, certainly," sneered Mrs. Timmins. "What a beast you to hold a red light in your mouth and tie a pestle and mortar round your neck, I'll start you for a drug store. How are you going to tie a mustard plaster round my liver? Don't you know the difference between a mustard plaster and a box of pills? What did you spill 'em for? Do you think I am going to eat mixed pills like candies? Been trying to make a pill salad, haven't you?"

"Let me think," said Mrs. Timmins, musingly. "Those brown ones are opium; now I remember, and the black ones are the ones you want. How many make a dose?"

"None," said Mrs. Timmins. "Do you suppose I'm going to take those things on their color? Think I'm going to run the chances of filling myself up with opium, just to test your eye for pills, as if I was playing a game of draw? I don't want any pills. Throw 'em out! Pitch that medicine chest out of the window! Next time I want pills I'll—"

Mrs. Timmins went to the cupboard, put the chest away, and as she did so, noticed a little box that had fallen out on the shelf.

"Here they are, dear," she said, smiling, and pointed out the label to her husband.

"Oh, yes, of course!" growled Mrs. Timmins. "you found 'em, didn't you? Couldn't give 'em to me at first, could you? Another time, Mrs. Timmins, I want you to let things alone. Don't ever put anything more of mine in that chest; you hear me? I don't want those things to-night, because they're not mine. I'm bilious, and when I saw I want these pills where I can find 'em; you understand? I don't want to go rooting about the house after pills when I'm ill. You understand that?"

"Yes, dear," said Mrs. Timmins, slipping the pills into her pocket.—N. Y. Weekly.

HALTS A "SOCIETY QUEEN"

Mere Policeman Orders Mrs. Astor's Carriage Out Line with the Rest in New York.

When a social queen finds herself treated as a mere ordinary mortal—worse still, treated in that fashion by policemen—she and her friends do not recover from the audacious affront for a long time, asserts the New York Press. That explains why Mrs. Astor and her intimates still are talking indignantly about an incident of the night when the grand opera season in the Metropolitan was opened. Actually, she had to bow to the traffic regulations. Her carriage was ordered into line when it reached the upper end of Louisa square. It was said the coachman, albeit his dignity far enough to stoop and whisper to a bloated that his august mistress preferred not to be detained. But the policeman had his orders, and if the queen of Sheba herself had begged for precedence he would not have granted it. So Mrs. Astor was 40 minutes late in reaching the opera house. Not that any holder of a box in the gilded horseshoe is ruffled by being late; the contrary is the case. "But what is the use of being society's leader if one is to be lated, actually belated, by some absurd regulation of some commissioner of something or other?" demand the Astor friends.

Pointing Out the Difference.

"Getting money out of you," said Mrs. Paver, "is like pulling teeth."

"No, it isn't, Nancy," protested Mr. Paver, reluctantly opening his pocketbook. "Pulling teeth nowadays is painless. This hurts."

Open Courtyard.

A court of law is a reminiscence of the time when justice sat in the open court yard, and the "back" is from a German word meaning a receptacle, while the "bar" is a Welsh word, meaning a branch of a tree used to separate the lords of justice from their tenants.

METROPOLE IN MARCH

Impression, which has been given in watching a New City Go Up Through Years.

The impression that may watch not only the making of a people, but what is almost as novel, the making of a metropolis, says H. G. Iwight, in Scribner's.

The process reflects with curious fidelity the nature and the temper of the elements at work. Architecturally the place is a chaos. The most catholic eclecticism vies with the wildest individuality. Whims sweep through it like an epidemic—whims of red brick, whims of brown stone, whims of white marble. You may mark where the tides of life beat least severely by the wreckage of an earlier period not yet borne under the onslaught of the new. But these relics have nothing of that indefinable touch which is of time. They have, rather, the air of a last year's hat. And they are discarded as easily as that. It is as if the builders, in spite of their perpetual astonishment at the growth of the city, somehow knew that their work was experimental and wrought accordingly. They apologized for their inadequacy to a role to suddenly thrust upon them by offering the least possible resistance to their successors.

To an observer tender of tradition the wholesale obliteration of landmarks which is so significant a feature of the present period would seem wanton if—to ignore other possibilities—it did not seem so engaging. An Old World landlord would think twice, if he thought at all, about pulling down a house that served its purpose. Here, on the contrary, great communities exist to no other end. As architects sometimes make models to see how their ideas will look, these people build houses to see how they look. And if the houses do not look well, the people sooner or later pull them down. Among all men of the earth these most completely enjoy the luxury of putting their betimes into execution. Which, as disposing of troublesome obsessions, and as giving new play to the law of natural selection, is perhaps not a bad road to better things. At all events there is less caprice in it than might appear. It is the plasticity of youth—an unlimited susceptibility to the new idea, a juvenile scorn of merely practical difficulties.

THE COLD SNAP.

Mercury Hovers Close to Zero—An Ice Spell.

The cold waves which struck Kentucky Sunday night, hit Hopkinsville hard, knocking the mercury in the thermometer down to zero. The Government thermometer, in charge of Mr. W. F. Randle, recorded Tuesday morning only two degrees above zero, which was about six degrees lower than at any time during the winter. Yesterday morning the mercury dropped to zero, as recorded by the Government thermometer. At nine o'clock the mercury had not moved up a particle at the First National Bank and seemed stuck at zero.

The cold wave was general all over the State, but at no point was it more acute felt than here. Big snows fell in several sections of the State, a very heavy one falling at Owensboro.

Last winter Hopkinsville "low"ed the record" over all other places in the State, with Owensboro a close second. Nobody is kicking now. The farmers, however, may yet be heard from, as some of them have been apprehensive that extreme cold weather would prove destructive to the wheat crop, which is so far advanced as to be in, in some sections of the county, the grain of cattle to keep it back. Other farmers have been wishing almost to the praying point for weather cold enough to furnish them with an ice crop. Now that their wishes have been realized they will have to find something else to wish for. Yesterday morning many of the farmers began putting up ice and if the cold spell continues until to-day it is thought they will all have their ice houses about filled. The ice on the ponds was about 3 inches thick yesterday morning.

Some one remarked jocularly Monday that he was "glad the weather was not cold enough to stop the running of street cars." He is about as much in advance of the day as was a lady who was visiting some friends here last summer. She wanted to return a call to a friend who lived out some distance on another street, and when ready to start, asked her hostess where she should get a car to a certain place. Imagine her surprise when she was told "Hopkinsville has no street cars." She never dreamed that a place the size of this, with all its energy and business, was trying to do without street cars. When she returns her surprise will be that "We have 'em," and "got 'em" in no short a time.

ICICLES.

Skating was enjoyed Tuesday night, large parties of young people being out. Everybody who wanted to had a chance yesterday.

Dr. Anderson says, "This is not white man's weather. It is mean dog weather, and a bob-tail dog, at that."

The fire in the basement of the Cumberland telephone office was allowed to burn down Tuesday night. In consequence, central "got it in the neck" badly from frozen pipes. "Smith" was seen in Nashville Tuesday, and if he went there to find a warmer climate, he made a mistake, and returned the next day to roast his shins by the radiator in his office.

Mr. Waltz, in charge of the weather bureau at Louisville, says that reports from all sections of the State indicate that fruit trees are in good condition and that wheat, rye and winter oats are thriving nicely. The local coal dealers have been reaping a harvest, while the indigent poor negroes, with but one or two exceptions, have had to apply to the mayor in larger numbers than at any time this winter for supplies of coal to keep them from freezing.

Walter Kelly, in attempting to tell how wise the weather bureau man is and why his forecasts are not always fulfilled, says that "a drop from above is what fools him." He has not yet explained how a "drop" can come from any other source but "from above."

28th Annual State Convention Meets at Lexington, Feb. 22.

A good representation from this city will probably attend the 28th annual state convention of the Young Men's Christian Association, which meets in Lexington on February 22nd, continuing in session four days.

Mr. F. C. Dix, of Louisville, was in the city Thursday. Mr. Dix is one of the four Secretaries of the State organization and is visiting different cities in the State with the view of inducing people who are interested in the work to attend the convention. Everybody will be welcomed who may attend, but only those who are members of the organization and present their credentials will be enlightened to entertainment. With the exception of the C. & O. every railway in the State has granted a rate of one fare for the round trip, plus 25 cents. This rate will apply to all who want to attend whether entitled to credentials or not. Mr. F. J. Brown will issue credentials to all local people who want to attend. Among the gentlemen who will speak are: Rev. Dr. Ira Landrith, of Nashville; Dr. F. W. Hitt, President of Central University, Macon, Ga.; J. H. Hicks, C. J. Ober and Clayton C. Conner, of New York City; L. E. Brown, of Illinois; L. A. Coulter, of Virginia; George T. Coxhead, of St. Louis; and others. Mr. E. W. Peck, of Minnesota, will conduct the musical part of the program. Regularly accredited delegates will be entertained by the citizens of Lexington.

ATHLETIC

Young Matron Smashes The Nose of Assailant

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 5.—"Rippy the Kisser," who has been terrorizing pretty women for the last ten days, almost came to grief late this afternoon, when he seized Mrs. Julia Hild, wife of Superintendent of the Board of Children's Guardians, and tried to caress her.

Mrs. Hild, who is prominent in society, and who is an active member of the physical culture class, was on her way home from a meeting of the club, when the "Kisser," described as good looking and aged 19, suddenly clutched her around the waist. Mrs. Hild did not scream, but she upper cut her assailant on the nose, drawing the blood which splattered on the snow at the mouth of an alley on Eighth, near Jefferson street. The man ran, pursued by James Stone and a negro woman. "Rippy the Kisser," tried to stab Mrs. Hild, but the blade of the weapon did not pass through the stays of her corset and fell to the ground. Mrs. Hild turned it over to the police.

LARGEST DIAMOND

Found Last Year and Weighs One and One Third Pounds.

1905 will be ever memorable because on Jan. 26 of that year Fred Wells, manager of the Premier mine in the Transvaal colony, South Africa, while going his round, picked up the largest diamond ever known or heard of in all history. It exceeds in size and weight and purity all of the fabulous diamonds we have read of. No writer of fiction has ever dared to imagine so large or so valuable a diamond as Mr. Wells actually picked up from the dump that afternoon. Estimated by the ordinary price per carat, its value is not less than $9,000,000. It weighs 3,024 carats, or 1.37 pounds avoirdupois, and its dimensions are four by two and a half by one and four inches. It is extremely pure, clear and white, and Dr. Molengraff, the government geologist of the Transvaal, describes it as "resembling a piece of transparent ice."

OLD VIRGINIA

CHEROOTS

Package of 3 for 5c.

Three good cheroots for 5 cents, and three good reasons why they don't cost just three times as much:

- 1—The Old Virginia Cheroot is a cigar made without the head. The little useless but costly hand-made head of a cigar—the tip that you must bite off before you light up—costs as much to make as the whole cigar. It's already off when you buy your Old Virginia Cheroots. You pay your money for smokes—and never a cent wasted.
- 2—The Old Virginia Cheroot is made from exactly the same tobacco as regular 5-cent cigars. Binder and wrapper are from the same bales. The filler is rolled from the shorter leaves and the clippings of the larger ones. This economical way of separating the leaf by sizes helps to save you a third of every nickel you spend for smokes.
- 3—The Old Virginia Cheroot is made by systematic modern methods that not only produce even, dependable quality year after year but that cut out the waste of the usual hap-hazard cigar-making processes. It is produced in quantities so immense that the manufacturing cost is cut down to bedrock. 1,000,000 Old Virginia Cheroots finished and packed every day in the finest, largest, cleanest cigar-factory in the world.

Sold wherever they sell tobacco

St. Louis Live Stock Market.

(Special Correspondence.) National stock yards, Ill., Feb. 7.—Comparing the market with one week ago today, beef steers sold 15 to 25 cents higher at the close last week, but 10 to 15 cents of this advance was lost the fore part of this week. Bulk of the pretty good to choice steers sold $5.25 to $5.75, however, we topped the market with one load of choice 1300 pound Missouri blacks. A good grade of decent light weight steers is selling from $4.50 to $5.00. Butcher grades showed even more advance than beef steers and came nearer holding it. We had some sales showing 25 to 40 cents advance from the early part of last week, however, the wire edge is off the market today and the undertone a little weak. The supply is about equal to the demand, including some choice heifers at $4.75 to $5.25 and prime cows at $4.25 to $4.50. Under light receipts of stockers and feeders was limited but the demand is good with prices ranging from $4.00 to $4.50 for choice feeders down to $3.50 for decent light weights.

An extreme top of $5.93 has been reached on hogs, indicating the correctness of our prediction last week when the top was $5.60. With 14,000 on sale yesterday the top was $5.25 with lots of good hogs selling around $5.80 and the general run of butchers $5.75. While a slight reaction would not be out of order, yet the hog position is strong and we expect to tell you of 6-cent hogs before long.

Sheep receipts run largely to western lambs selling around $5.65, western yearlings around $5.75 and stockers at $3.75. Lambs are 25 to 50 cents lower and sheep a quarter lower than a week ago. If Mr. Ground-hog continues to "make good" conditions will favor a strong market for all kinds of live stock. EVANS-SMITH-BUEL CO.

St. Valentine's Day.

Over 500 years ago young people began sending love letters to each other and it was thought that birds also chose their mates on the 14th of February, hence it was called St. Valentine's day and the custom still continues.

St. Valentine's day falls on Wednesday this year and dealers are already opening up and showing their stocks, varying in price all the way from the half-cent comic ones to real works of art worth several dollars each. The clerks in the different postoffices in the world are about the only ones who hate to see the day arrive.

Common Cold and the Cause of Serious Diseases

Physicians who have gained a national reputation as analysts of the cause of various diseases claim that if caught and cured at once, the long list of dangerous ailments would never be heard of. Every one knows that pneumonia and consumption originate from a cold, and chronic catarrh, bronchitis, and all throat and lung trouble are aggravated and rendered more serious by each fresh attack. Do not risk your life or take any chance of losing it by a cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will cure it before it becomes dangerous. This remedy has no opium, morphine or any other harmful drug and has thirty years of reputation back of it, gained by its cures under every condition. For sale by L. L. Elgin and Anderson & Fowler, The Up-to-Date Druggists at Hopkinsville.

At the Baptist prayer meeting at Mt. Olivet 400 people were present.

Itch—Ringworm!

E. T. Lucas, Wingo, Ky., writes, April 25, 1902: "For 10 to 12 years I have been afflicted with a malady known as the 'itch'. The itching was most unbearable. I had tried for years to find relief, having tried all remedies I could hear of, besides a number of doctors. Chamberlain's Snow Liniment cured me completely and permanently. Since then I have used the ointment on two separate occasions for ring worm and it cured completely. 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by Cook & Higgins.

A Favorite Remedy for Babies

Its pleasant taste and prompt cures have made Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a favorite with the mothers of small children. It quickly cures their coughs and colds and prevents any danger of pneumonia or other serious consequences. It not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the croupy cough appears will prevent the attack. Sold by L. L. Elgin and Anderson & Fowler, up-to-date druggists at Hopkinsville.

The Fashions of the Day

An authority tells us the short sleeve for street wraps will last no longer this season, but surely it is very much the fashion of the year. And surely Santa Claus this year brought many a maid and matron most welcome additions to their stocks of long gloves. It seems there never were so many calls for the white wrist waist as there are now. The white wrist waist is worn by everybody in the morning, we simply cannot give up this trim and dainty garment. Neckwear for the wash-waist, that is, for the day, is very different. Washable stocks of various sorts are popular, and many linen ones have hand-made turn-over collars. It is to be hoped women will adhere to washable neckwear. It is the only really desirable kind. One reason men look neater than women after an all-day downtown is because of their daily fresh linen, because they display no soiled linen.

We may affect the laundered collar later on, but again take up the Windsor tie, this year there is appearing a Windsor with embroidered ends. Both plain and plaid effects are in vogue in this tie. The favored width is five inches, the favored colors, white, navy and cardinal. For lingerie waists there are exquisite self-embroidered lingerie stocks. Japanese embroidery on waists and in neckwear promises to be more than ever the rage; likewise chemisettes lose no lot of their popularity, but now preference is given those made of fine, satiny rather than all-over embroidery and lace frills.

Bits of silk picked up at to-day's bargain counters may be saved for the gray voile spring gown, for flowered silks go so prettily with certain soft tones of gray, and the combination is the extreme of style. As for cloths, make a lovely evening wrap, and the trimming to use for such a wrap is heavy lace. Not a few of the wraps are made without sleeves, but in our cases, not unlike those we see in out-fashioned fashion plates.

Some Ornaments for the Hair

A woman said to me the other day—to be sure it was a hairdresser—let a woman look to her hair dressing and her hat and she need not worry. And there is no little truth in the statement, though few there be of us that seem to profit by knowledge of the fact.

This year especially the coiffure is something not to be neglected, and every woman should pay careful attention to this item—climax, rather—of dress. While there is no one style which may be said absolutely to rule, yet there are certain things modish, certain others not. It is all very well to assert that a woman should not observe changing fashions in hair-dressing, that she should keep to one style that has been found becoming; she should certainly never go in for a fashion that is not becoming to her individual face and form, but she may adopt certain little changes that will bespeak attention to the mode. As for instance, this season for full dress she may add some form of ornament to her coiffure.

As a rule the hair ornaments are modest and pretty rather than obtrusive, though the latter in Paris they have gone in for long eregrets and even birds of paradise feathers. A soft low pompadour is decorative and becoming, also the single rose, and also the cluster of small blossoms. Sometimes from the half wreath there will arise at one side a soft ostrich feather, sometimes the wreath will terminate in butterfly bows. The single ostrich tip has been worn by generations of women, and is again in vogue. It is a sort of regal touch to the toilette, suggests court receptions, queen's drawing room—though worn by a very humble little girl at her first dance. The lace and jeweled butterfly has also had a long life, just why we cannot say.

Never modes are upstaging sprays of gold and silver wheatheads intermingled with grasses, and we should speak of the use of other shimmering costume he warm. It is better to be too warm than too cool. Better to sweat a little than to shiver.

gold foliage, and occasionally the tips of soft pompadour will be touched with silver or white. The simplest and simplest mode is the use of a twist of tinsel gauze across the front of the coil. Good gauze should be avoided, cheap tinsel is a thing to be avoided.

It may be in place here to speak of the arrangement of the hair. The low coil and braid are not so much in fashion now as the hair drawn up on the crown of the head. The pompadour, a nicely modified one, is the thing, although the part is seen quite frequently and when becoming is most attractive. A pompadour drawn up prettily well from the sides and falling over the middle of the forehead is affected, and there may be a little curl just at the middle. We recently noticed a pretty arrangement of roses across the back of a soft knot of hair piled high on the head.

She Still Retains Her Figure

No one would believe how hard the work of England works. No working woman tells more steadily than she. Her object is to preserve her figure, make her waist little make her figure tall and slim and preserve, generally, the outlines of her body.

Svelte is the only word to describe the queen of England's form. It is that of a girl of 15, mature, but not matronly, developed, but not manly, with curves, yet not rounding, tall, classic and ideal, yet not stilted nor laced. And its price is eternal vigilance.

The queen of late has been going in for out-door frocks. She is a believer in outdoor exercises and her reduction methods take the form of out-door work. She rows upon the Thames; she rides off the banks of Scotland; she drives an automobile in London and she works vigorously in the garden.

The queen walks little, yet walking is fine for the figure. Her majesty is a firm believer in it, but being slightly lame, she seldom indulges in it.

If you are walking for reduction, or if you are contemplating for that same purpose, be sure to dress for it. Let your

Attempt At a Character Sketch of "The Great American"

The Fame of Benjamin Franklin Undimmed—A Man Too Great to Bother About Contemporary Accidents or Criticisms—Yet Thoroughly Human.

It has not happened often that such distinction should fall to an individual that a whole nation should benefit from the reflected glory. In the distinction of Benjamin Franklin it seems to us this rare occurrence emerged. Was he not known abroad—in both scientific and diplomatic circles—as "the great American"? And today what name does the visiting foreigner use when addressing American audiences? He says "your Washington," but also "your Franklin."

It was most fitting the two hundredth anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birth should be celebrated by the tribute of a nation, that we as a nation keep green the memory of this great citizen, this great fellow countryman.

We hear repeatedly the phrase "the many-sided Franklin," but in reflecting on his career as a whole we like best to call him citizen. But whatever the term—citizen, philanthropist, inventor, scientist, philosopher, diplomat, statesman—Franklin's fame remains undimmed; we moderns, so taxed on their private lands for the support of the English troops; this they had refused. Franklin had given his personal security to the Pennsylvania farmers for supplies and transportation for Braddock's men at the time of the French and Indian war. The matter of the Penn taxes satisfactorily settled, he turned his attention to the stamp act and helped secure its repeal.

It was service rendered during the revolutionary war that is especially notable. He obtained from France aid and concessions which it is agreed no other man possibly could have. To the French he was especially "gratia," and to the most exclusive circles of Paris he had entrance, was there received with warmest appreciation. Political, scientific, literary France approved of this American, he was given what he asked for. And for once he was not modest: in asking for his country he asked much. Every schoolboy knows the aid he gave the American navy, every schoolboy knows the gift made by France to John Paul given to tearing down, to irreverence. Still yield in full homage. Yes, Franklin is a name to conjure by; for he is both hero and brother. History has not glossed over the facts of his life as it has done with Washington; biographers have presented Benjamin Franklin to us as a very human human. And therefore endeared, as Lowell says:

"His name was not far to seek. He was so human."

Franklin was no saint; perhaps we can call him an honest sinner. For honesty was his in an great degree as simplicity. To the end he was unaffected, unassuming, so devoted to the interests of life he had no thought to waste on world renown, or the accumulation of vast wealth. We like among the numberless interesting stories handed down, the little anecdote told of his manner of announcing the result of his investigations in the subject of electricity, the discovery of the identity of lightning with electricity. Some three calm months after the notable kite experiment, he wrote a short letter to a London paper, telling that in Philadelphia such an experiment had been made, and simply signed his initials to the announcement.

We like also his calm attitude of taking either praise or blame. When learned society and university, at home or abroad, conferred upon him honors and degrees in appreciation of his illustrious achievements, he smilingly accepted the appreciation, but on the whole seemed rather amused than puffed up. During his residence in England as representative for the colonies when he was largely extolled by the mother country and colonists, he took reproach with silence, bided his time. It would seem a most desirable attribute for a diplomat to possess, a philosophical bent.

A well recognized authority tells us Franklin's greatest service to America was undoubtedly due to his skill in diplomacy. His public spirit was early indicated and continuing as long as life; his tireless studies and broad grasp of affairs; his prestige among scientific men of international celebrity; his neat wit and ability to get at the heart of a matter; all these tended to build up the success of our so very successful diplomat. And perhaps it would not be out of place here to review his services as our representative. On the mission to England he succeeded in obtaining what he had been primarily sent out for, that the descendants of William Penn, proprietors of Pennsylvania, be made pay

Jones, the vessel rechristened Bon Homme Richard. Franklin insisted for his country, "bankrupt and almost hopeless," loans from France amounting to many millions of francs, and this in spite of the vigorous opposition of Necker the French statesman and financier.

And to turn from big things to small, let us make mention of the fact that he was "aided upon occasions while carrying on negotiations with France to deal with petitions from French men and women of all sorts, and that his good nature and diplomacy and well-known benevolence were sadly taxed thereby. In a recent number of Lippincott's there is a very interesting article on "Franklin's Trials as a Benefactor," the material obtained from hitherto unpublished sources in the possession of the American Philosophical society. We are treated to some characteristic memoranda, and the brief article shows us Franklin as both wit and philanthropist.

The author of "Poor Richard" was thrifty and shrewd, but not mercenary. In his printing business he made enough money to provide comfortably for the day when he should be too old to earn more, but he had none of our present age's "grip of greed." He would take no money for his inventions or scientific discoveries—they belonged to mankind. He early formed the habit of giving, and the habit remained fixed. There were long years when he was obliged to live on his benevolence, for his span of life was no short one—from January 17, 1706, to April 17, 1790.

They used to call Franklin atheist, but the mature Franklin was, to use a term of to-day, a liberal Christian. In his youth he played with skepticism, and yet it is in his youth he wrote the epitaph which speaks faith: "The body of Benjamin Franklin, printer, lies the cover of an old book, its sides are lined and striped of its lettering and gilding, here food for worms. But the work shall not be lost, for it will, as is believed, appear once more in a new and more elegant edition, revised and corrected by the Author."

Men tell, with tongue in cheek, of Franklin's natural son, the child born to the young wife of the printer. But do they tell that the father publicly and privately called him son, ever addressed toward him fatherly? Hyperbole as no man could deny, he was an honest man as well as a very great man, he is written down.

SHOT HIMSELF.

Pistol Discharged in Boy's Pocket.

Finis Johnson, a colored boy, who lives on the farm of Mr. C. A. Brasher, three miles East of this city, accidentally shot himself Tuesday afternoon.

The boy had a pistol in the right pocket of his trousers, and by some unknown means the weapon was discharged, the ball taking effect in the groin, and ranged downward. The wound may prove fatal.

The boy is 17 years of age and lived with his father, Ike Johnson, on Mr. Brasher's farm. He was a fond of carrying a pistol, and although often warned of the danger, he persisted in carrying his gun most of the time. Dr. Bell, of Casky, was called and did what he could for the unlucky lad.

$500 FIRE.

Country Home of the Late Hon. Austin Peay.

Information was received here Tuesday morning of the partial destruction by fire of the home of the late Hon. Austin Peay, near Bell. The house was owned by Mr. W. L. Easton, who succeeded in saving most of his household goods. The fire originated from a wood heater in one of the rooms and was extinguished by a bucket brigade. The loss will approximate probably $500, which is covered by insurance.

High Priced Tobacco Burned.

N. W. Porter, a farmer of near Springfield, Tenn., lost by fire, a large barn filled with tobacco, which he had sold at $1.25 a hundred. Incendiaries are suspected and two negroes are under arrest. Bloodhounds followed a trail from the barn to their home.

Another Prizer.

Chairman of the County Committee of the Farmers Tobacco Association, has closed a contract with Messrs. A. J. Hooper & Co., of this city, whereby said firm is added to the list of prizers for the members of the Association in this county.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Isle of Spice"

One of the most elaborate and gorgeous of musical comedies, is Manager B. C. Whitney's "Isle of Spice" which will appear at this theater in the near future. The "Isle of Spice" was one of the few big musical successes of last season, and if ever a theatrical attraction may lay claim to the often misused title of metropolitan success the "Isle of Spice" may, for within the past two years it has been played 150 nights each in Chicago, Boston and New York City. It has but recently closed its long run at the Majestic Theatre, New York City, and will be presented here by the identical company, scenery, electrical and mechanical effects that have had so much to do with its popularity.

F. E. B.

We heard a man say the other morning that the abbreviation of February—Feb.—means Freeze everybody, and that man looked frozen in his ulster. It was apparent that he needed the kind of warmth that stays the warmth that reaches from head to foot, all over the body. We could have told him from personal knowledge that Hood's Sarsaparilla gives permanent warmth, it invigorates the blood and speeds it along through artery and vein, and really fits men and women, boys and girls, to enjoy cold weather and resist the attacks of disease. It gives the right kind of warmth, and strengthens at the same time, and all the benefits are lasting. There may be a suggestion in this for you.

Dr. E. W. Hall, St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Sir: I suffered ten years with severe kidney and bladder troubles, and at times was unable to work. I was obliged to try your Texas Wonder, and after using one-fourth of one bottle, I passed a large gravel, and I have never suffered since passing the same, three years ago. I have recommended it to many others, who report themselves cured. I most heartily recommend it to all sufferers from kidney and bladder diseases.

SAM DEAN.

A Texas Wonder.

One small bottle of the Texas Wonder, Hall's Great Discovery, cures all kidney and bladder troubles, removes gravel, diabetes, seminal emission, weak and lame back, rheumatism and all irregularities of the kidneys and bladder in men and women and regulates bladder troubles in children. If not sold by your druggist will be sent by mail on receipt of $1.00. One small bottle is two months treatment and seldom fails to perfect a cure. Dr. E. W. Hall, sole manufacturer, P. O. Box 629, St. Louis, Mo. Send for testimonial. Sold by all druggists and R. C. Hardwick, Hopkinsville.

About Our HEAVY TEAM AND FARM HARNESS!

We make a specialty of heavy team and farm harness. We believe it is better value than any other similar harness sold in the State, or for that matter in the country.

We make it ourselves from carefully selected stock; every piece of it is sewed with greatest care. It's the stoutest, best wearing, best working harness of the kind made.

The traveling salesmen tell us we ought to get more money for it, but we're satisfied with the price.
